Data Protection Statement

The England and Wales Cricket Board (ECB) will hold the information you provide in a database and will use it to:

- Verify the information you provide and the role you propose to take up at the relevant club
- Administer the request for an ECB endorsement for you including assessing you against the endorsement criteria
- Administer the application to the UK Borders Agency
- Administer any appeal you may make against any decision
- Notify decisions to your sponsoring club

The ECB will provide the information to the Criminal Records Bureau as part of the required vetting process.

In exceptional circumstances which suggest a serious child protection risk, the ECB may share all information it has about you with law enforcement, child protection and other relevant organisations to protect children from harm.

You are entitled to a copy of the information held about you for which a fee may be charged. Details of how to do this are available from the ECB Data Protection Officer.
