

WFP's Emergency Appeal for Haiti

The reality of the devastation and profound suffering that the people of Haiti are experiencing is heartbreaking. WFP is urgently scaling up and managing a complex food relief operation for two million people in Haiti, which can feel daunting given the ruined infrastructure and the depth of human tragedy.

Each day the number of victims rises and medical facilities are being stretched beyond capacity. People are living out in the open and orphaned children are now in charge of their younger siblings. But in the midst of all this crisis, there is room for optimism.

We have the experience. We have the know-how. WFP teams are mobilized and ready-to-eat foods have started to reach the hungry. And this is just the beginning. Planes and helicopters are being mobilized and WFP is spearheading a massive logistics and emergency telecommunications operation on behalf of the entire humanitarian community.

Many of you have given your support during these past days and the results have been incredible. We would like to extend to you our deepest gratitude on behalf of all the Haitians who have been helped, thanks to you.

We will continue to need your help! WFP's Emergency Operation requires US$ 246 million to feed two million people for the next six months. Even a small amount will ensure that at least one more person in Haiti will not go hungry.

Help Haiti Now! Donate via www.wfp.org/donate/Haiti or contact Natalie.Vaupel@wfp.org for further information.

World Food Programme